Welcome to Ithaka's Intranet

Welcome to Ithaka's intranet site. This site features news, updates and information specifically related to Ithaka staff in each of our offices.

Since this is 'your' space, we welcome all suggestions and ideas that you may have for content.

At the top of each and every page is a link to a Feedback Agent, Leave Feedback. If while on a page, you notice that information is out of date, incorrect, or perhaps there is broken link, use the Feedback Agent to let the intranet committee know. The page you are on when you click on the Feedback Agent, will be sent along with your email message.

All inquiries should be directed to Wendy Feldman at wendy.feldman@ithaka.org.

Report on University Publishing Released.

Scholars have a vast range of opportunities to distribute their work, from setting up web pages or blogs, to posting articles to working paper websites or institutional repositories, to including them in peer-reviewed journals or books. In American colleges and universities, access to the internet and World Wide Web is ubiquitous; consequently nearly all intellectual effort results in some form of "publishing". Yet universities do not treat this function as an important, mission-centric endeavor. The result has been a scholarly publishing industry that many in the university community find to be increasingly out of step with the important values of the academy.
